

Central Asia sells optical cables

Article Overview

Central Asia has several reliable suppliers and manufacturers of optical cables, including Prime-C, Optictelecom, and Artikul Kabel, covering Kazakhstan, Uzbekistan, Kyrgyzstan, and Turkmenistan.

Key Suppliers and Locations

1. Prime-C Group Prime-C specializes in telecommunication cable products and passive equipment, supplying optical cables across Kazakhstan, Uzbekistan, Kyrgyzstan, and Turkmenistan. They maintain warehouses in Karaganda, Almaty, Uralsk (Kazakhstan), and Tashkent (Uzbekistan). Their products are certified and sourced from proven manufacturers, and they provide technical support from network engineering to installation and operation . 2. Optictelecom (Kazakhstan) Operating since 2003, Optictelecom supplies optical fiber cables, accessories, couplings, and testing instruments. They are partners with major telecom providers in Kazakhstan and can handle large-scale projects, including construction and maintenance of fiber optic lines. They also operate a laboratory for OTDR verification and other optical testing . 3. Artikul Kabel (Uzbekistan) Based in Tashkent, Artikul Kabel is a leading manufacturer of wire and cable products, including fiber optic cables. They offer over 2,000 types of cables, with custom development for special requirements. The company has an accredited testing center and ensures compliance with international standards. They provide both wholesale and retail options through their website . 4. Wholesale Suppliers Across Asia For bulk purchases, platforms like go4WorldBusiness list verified wholesale suppliers and manufacturers of optical fiber cables in Asia. These suppliers offer various cable types, including armored, direct-buried, and loose tube designs suitable for backbone and long-haul applications
