

How much does a copper busbar cost in Zimbabwe

Article Overview

Copper busbar prices in Zimbabwe vary widely depending on size, type, and fabrication, typically ranging from several hundred to several thousand Zimbabwean dollars per unit, with exact quotes available from local suppliers.

Price Overview

Copper busbars are generally more expensive than aluminum alternatives due to the higher cost of copper and superior conductivity. In Zimbabwe, prices are influenced by:

- Material cost: Copper prices fluctuate globally, affecting local busbar costs.
- Busbar type: Solid, flexible, or insulated copper busbars have different fabrication costs. Insulated flexible copper busbars, for example, are coated with PVC and are more expensive than bare copper strips ().
- Dimensions: Larger cross-sections and longer lengths increase the price.
- Fabrication and labor: Cutting, bending, punching, and plating add to the final cost ().
- Delivery and availability: Local suppliers in Harare and other cities may offer different prices depending on stock and shipping ().
