

Inspection Report of Distribution Boxes and Cabinets

Article Overview

An inspection report for distribution boxes and cabinets documents visual checks, electrical testing, compliance with safety standards, and any defects or hazards identified.

Key Components of the Inspection

Visual Inspection: Inspect the physical condition of distribution boxes, cabinets, and cutout boxes. Check for proper installation, absence of excessive gaps, secure mounting, closure of conductor openings, and adequate space for wiring, splices, and taps (). Ensure cabinets in wet or damp locations are suitable and properly sealed ().

Electrical Testing: Measure continuity of protective conductors, verify residual current devices (RCDs) are type A with a maximum tripping current of 30 mA, and test RCD functionality (). Ground circuit resistance and earth resistance measurements should be performed to ensure safety ().

Component Checks: Examine phase, neutral, and earth busbars, incoming transformer isolators, outgoing ways with fuses, and any current transformers or meters (). Ensure cables are properly secured and bending space is sufficient ().

Standards and Compliance

Inspections should follow relevant standards such as NEN 3140 for portable distribution units and NEN 1010 for low-voltage installations (). These standards cover safe operation, maintenance, and compliance with electrical safety regulation...
