

Installation Solution for IP68 Micro-Module Data Center in South Africa

Article Overview

IP68-rated micro-module data centers in South Africa can be rapidly deployed using prefabricated, weatherproof modular solutions with integrated power, cooling, and monitoring systems.

Overview of Micro-Module Data Centers

Micro-module data centers are compact, self-contained units designed for high-density IT infrastructure in limited spaces. They are often prefabricated and pre-assembled, allowing for rapid deployment and minimal on-site construction. IP68-rated units provide dust-tight and water-resistant protection, making them suitable for outdoor or harsh environments in South Africa .

Key Installation Considerations

- Site Preparation
 - Ensure a level, stable foundation capable of supporting the module's weight.
 - Consider access for delivery and maintenance, including crane or forklift access for pre-assembled units .
- Power and Cooling Integration
 - Use Power Distribution Units (PDUs) and Automatic Transfer Switches (ATS) for reliable electricity delivery and redundancy .
 - Cooling options include hybrid liquid-air systems, DX, chilled water, or air economizer systems, optimized for high-density racks
