

Installation of Commercial Distribution Boxes in the Netherlands

Article Overview

Commercial distribution boxes in the Netherlands must be installed by certified electricians following NEN 1010 and NEN 3140 standards to ensure safety, reliability, and future-proofing.

Overview

A distribution box (also called a distribution board or sub-distribution board) is essential for safely distributing electricity across multiple circuits in commercial or industrial buildings. It manages high-voltage power, integrates safety devices like residual current devices (RCDs), circuit breakers, and main switches, and allows for future expansions such as solar panels, electric vehicle charging stations, or heat pumps .

Types of Distribution Boxes

- Single-phase boards: Suitable for smaller commercial setups with standard power requirements.
- Three-phase boards: Required for high-demand applications like induction cooktops, large machinery, or EV charging stations.
- Expansion modules: Allow additional circuits, smart meters, or integration with automation systems .
