

Portuguese Plastic Tail Fiber Channel

Article Overview

The Portuguese plastic tail fiber channel market involves manufacturers and suppliers of PVC, PP, and reinforced plastic conduits for fiber optics and industrial applications, supported by industry associations like APIP.

Industry Overview

In Portugal, the plastic channel and fiber conduit sector is supported by both manufacturers of thermoplastics and reinforced plastics and industry associations. The Associação Portuguesa da Indústria de Plásticos (APIP) represents the plastics sector, promoting sustainable practices, standardization, and technical development for plastic materials, including channels and conduits used in industrial and telecom applications. APIP also coordinates technical committees that monitor European and international standards relevant to plastic piping and ducting systems.

Key Manufacturers and Suppliers

- Isofibras specializes in fiberglass-reinforced plastics (FRP) and thermoplastics such as PVC and PP. They manufacture reinforced tubing and conduits suitable for chemical, water, and food industries, which can also be applied for fiber optic protection. Their products include GRP tubing, transport tanks, and reinforced thermoplastic channels designed for mechanical strength and weather resistance.
- Plastock offers a wide range of extruded plastic PVC and carbon fiber profiles, including plastic channels, flat bars, and joining sections. These products are suitable for industrial applications, including cable management and fiber optic installations.
- Fartrouven provides thermoplastic composite pipes (TCP) and reinforced thermopl...
