

Price of Home Distribution Box Configuration List

Article Overview

The cost of an in-home distribution box typically ranges from $150 to $1,800 depending on size, amperage, features, and installation complexity.

Typical Price Ranges

- Basic Configuration: For a standard 100 A indoor panel with 6 breaker spaces, minimal wiring, and standard materials, the total cost including labor is usually $800–$1,000 .
- Mid-Range Configuration: A 125 A panel with 12 breaker spaces, upgraded breakers, and some rewiring generally costs $1,400–$1,800 .
- Premium Configuration: For a 200+ A service upgrade with 16–22 spaces, outdoor weatherproof enclosure, specialty breakers, and extensive wiring, costs can reach $2,800–$4,000 .

Factors Affecting Cost

- Amperage and Circuit Capacity: Higher amp ratings and more breaker spaces increase both material and labor costs .
- Material and Enclosure Type: Plastic boxes are more affordable, while metal or weatherproof enclosures add 30–60% to the price .
- Safety Features: Modern boxes may include AFCI/GFCI protection, surge protection, and residual current devices, which can raise costs but improve safety .
- Installation Complexity: Labor costs vary by location, accessibility, and whether rewiring or upgrades are required
