

Price of hoisting mobile power distribution box

Article Overview

The price of a hoisting mobile power distribution box typically ranges from $500 to $3,000 or more, depending on specifications, capacity, and safety features.

Overview

A hoisting mobile power distribution box is designed to safely distribute electrical power to cranes, hoists, and other lifting equipment. These boxes often include built-in electrical appliances such as contactors, control transformers, and phase sequence protection, along with safety features like short circuit, overload, phase loss, and overcurrent protection. They are generally used in industrial environments such as steel plants, ports, rail transport, and construction sites.

Factors Affecting Price

- Voltage and Amperage Ratings: Boxes with higher operating voltages (e.g., 380V) and higher amperage capacities cost more due to the need for robust components.
- Number of Circuits: Units with multiple adjustable circuit breakers or outputs for different loads are more expensive.
- Portability and Durability: Mobile units designed for outdoor use or harsh environments, with weatherproof or rugged enclosures, command higher prices.
- Safety Certifications: Compliance with standards such as UL, CE, or cULus increases cost but ensures operational safety.
- Customization: Special configurations for specific crane types, environmental conditions, or integration with control systems can significantly raise the price
