

Serbian Optical Cable Processing

Article Overview

Serbia has a growing optical fiber cable industry, with established production, distribution, and deployment networks supported by both local manufacturers and international partnerships.

Key Companies and Production

Coptech is a major Serbian company involved in the production, distribution, and sale of all types of cables, including optical fiber cables. They supply raw materials, cable accessories, and specialized cables for industries such as construction, hydropower, solar energy, oil, railways, and aviation. Coptech collaborates with global manufacturers like NEXANS, ARISTONCAVI, FABERKABEL, and AFL, ensuring high-quality standards and ISO certifications (ISO 9001, ISO 14001, ISO/IEC 27001, ISO 45001) for their products. Telegradnja Ltd focuses on consulting, designing, construction, and maintenance of telecommunication infrastructure. They provide optical fiber measuring with OTDR, develop measurement protocols, and install GPON networks, supporting both passive and active telecommunication equipment. Conexio operates a backbone optical fiber network in Serbia, spanning 860 km along major highways. Their network uses G.655E fiber and includes 15 ILA sites, providing low round-trip delay and high reliability for telecommunications.

Market Overview

The Serbian optical fiber cable market has experienced moderate growth in recent years. After a period of decline, production and consumption began rising again, with exports increasing significantly. Key export destinations include Germany, Slovenia,...
