Article Overview

The CIF price for power supply systems exported to Brazil includes the product cost, international freight, insurance, and Brazilian import duties and taxes, which can range from 0–15% depending on classification and exemptions.

Understanding CIF Pricing

CIF (Cost, Insurance, and Freight) represents the total cost of delivering goods to a Brazilian port, including:

- Product cost from the exporter
- Freight charges for international shipping
- Insurance covering transit risks This pricing ensures the seller assumes responsibility until the goods arrive at the destination port, simplifying risk management for the buyer .

When importing power supply systems into Brazil, several taxes and fees apply:

- Import Duty (II): Calculated on a CIF basis during customs clearance. Rates vary depending on the product's Nomenclature Comum do Mercosul (NCM) code
