

What are some manufacturers of network cabinet profiles and equipment

Article Overview

Network cabinets are structured enclosures designed to house IT and networking equipment, available in various sizes, protection ratings, and configurations from leading manufacturers like Chatsworth, Intellinet, Legrand, EFB-Elektronik, and Panduit.

Cabinet Profiles

1. Rack Units and Dimensions Network cabinets are typically measured in rack units (U), with common sizes ranging from 6U to 52U. Depths vary from 450 mm to 1200 mm, allowing flexibility for different equipment sizes and installation spaces . Cabinets can be floor-standing for large installations or wall-mounted for smaller networks . 2. Protection Ratings Cabinets are available with different IP ratings to suit environmental conditions:

- IP20: Standard IT environments
- IP55: Industrial or harsher conditions requiring dust and water protection 3.

Construction and Materials Cabinets are built from tubular steel, aluminum, or sheet metal, offering load capacities up to 5,000 lbs for heavy server equipment . Features include lockable doors, side panels, and perforated panels for ventilation and security . 4. Specialized Features

- Cable management: Vertical and horizontal organizers to maintain bend radius and reduce clutter
- Ventilation and thermal management: Perforated doors, side panels, and contain...
